Comex Continuous Gold Daily Chart November 10

Dollar strength coupled with the huge margin-change related downdraft in silver, pulled gold back into the first level of chart support near the $1,380 level early in the session.

It did attract buyers at that level however and moved nearly $20 higher as it went into the close.

Resistance levels remain the same; support levels do also.

I would prefer seeing a sideways pattern here that holds for a week or more to generate the next up leg.
